COUNSELLORS AT LAW

Re: Neill Fendly

To Whom It May Concern:

I am enthusiastically writing this letter on behalf Neill Fendly, whom I have had the pleasure, and distinctly good fortune, to have worked with as an expert in several significant federal criminal cases involving allegations of mortgage fraud.

Neill's store of information, his analytic abilities, and excellent communication skills on, and off the witness stand make him an excellent, if not necessary addition, to legal teams defending mortgage fraud and related matters in federal or state venues. He both educates the lawyer he is working with (both for the general defense of the case and for the cross examination of government witnesses), while being very persuasive with fact-finders, whether a jury or a judge, alone- all of which he accomplishes in a very non-pretentious logical and understated presentation.

I have been practicing predominantly, often high profile, white collar criminal cases, since my graduation from Harvard Law School in 1973. I have managed larger law firms and presently head a more boutique-like firm of five or six trial lawyers involved predominantly in white collar litigation.

I could not recommend anyone more enthusiastically. Please feel free to contact me with any questions you may have.

Very truly yours,
